Hans J. Wegner | AT-48

Serving trolley with removable tray

Designed for everyday living.

A sculpted tray, rounded frame and lower shelf bring warmth and practical purpose to this Danish serving trolley. The lift-off top allows the tray to travel from preparation to presentation.

Designer: Hans J. Wegner
Manufacturer: Andreas Tuck
Origin: Denmark
Model: AT-48
Period: Mid-20th century; circa 1960s
Identification: Branded underside

THE DESIGNER & THE IDEA

Hans J. Wegner (1914-2007) helped shape Danish Modern design. Trained as a cabinetmaker and celebrated for the Wishbone Chair, he paired expressive woodwork with useful, simplified forms. This trolley reflects that approach through its sculpted edges, open frame and adaptable serving surface.

FROM MIDCENTURY ENTERTAINING TO TODAY

As a serving trolley, its traditional role is to bring coffee, tea, refreshments or tableware within reach. The removable tray supports carrying and serving, while the lower shelf provides extra storage. Today, the same arrangement suits relaxed entertaining and flexible living spaces.

- Coffee and tea service
- Drinks and cocktail cart
- Dessert or dining-room service
- Sofa-side table
- Reading-nook companion
- Display for books and ceramics